

Ten Hotels To Dream About Visiting When The Pandemic Is Over

Katie Kelly Bell Contributor

ForbesLife

I cover what's interesting in wine, spirits, food and travel.

Armchair travel is the new normal for everyone, so while our travel wings are clipped let's take a pause to dream about life after the coronavirus pandemic. Indeed, this moment is a reminder to us that travel and the soul-stirring experiences it brings can be sustaining in the harder, darker times of our lives. Now, look forward and imagine (with the help of these gorgeous photos) the thrills of travel—arriving in a new city, dining in a rainforest treetop, picnicking on a remote beach, or sipping wine in an ancient castle. Nothing good or bad lasts forever; let's plan for the good that will come eventually.

Andronis Arcadia, Oia, Santorini, Greece: Intimate and luxurious, this 53-room (all are suites) five-star property boasts private plunge pools for each suite and the largest main pool on the island. They are also proud to share the island's largest wine collection and, should you get stressed deciding which wine to order, a state-of-the-art spa and some of the best views in Santorini.